SETH'S RIDE

Seth was smart as a whip. If he had gone to school, he probably would have gotten very good grades. But there just wasn't any place for him in the public school system. You see, Seth was a chimpanzee so he was given his own private education by his owner and trainer, Tom Barker. Tom had trained many other animals in the past, but none was brighter or faster to learn than Seth.

When Tom was invited by the circus to bring Seth around for an audition, Tom knew that Seth would just have to put on an extra-special performance. He tried to think of a really exciting trick for Seth to perform, something that would set the circus on its ear. Wouldn't it be a riot if Tom and Seth arrived at the circus in Tom's car—with Seth driving?

Naturally, Tom wouldn't give Seth his driving lessons on public streets. He drove outside the city to a large, open field where no other cars were around. It seemed like a ridiculous idea to teach a chimp how to operate an automobile, but that's exactly why Tom liked the plan.

Within several weeks, Seth had made great progress. He had learned how to start the car and push the buttons that allowed it to go forward and backward. He practiced releasing the handbrake, and gripping the steering wheel. Tom installed a lever that would allow Seth to stop the car by hand. Day after day, Seth sat atop his pile of pillows behind the wheel, learning the art of driving.

The night before the appointment, Seth and Tom went to bed early. But they both had trouble getting to sleep. Tom finally dozed off at about midnight, but Seth tossed and turned on his blanket in the basement. At last, Seth could stand it no longer. He was too restless to sleep. And since Tom trusted him enough not to tie him to the water pipe, Seth was free to go for a walk. ...Which he did... straight for the car.

Apparently Seth wanted to try sitting behind the wheel just once more before the big test. Fortunately Tom had taken the key out of the car, but Seth could still practice with the wheel and all the buttons and levers. When the car first started to roll out of the driveway, Seth didn't even notice that he was moving. When it started to gain speed down the hill in front of Tom's house, Seth really got worried. As a matter of fact, he became so upset that he forgot everything Tom had taught him—including how to stop the car. But Seth did remember how to open the window... which he did... and he jumped out.

The next day, when Tom and Seth arrived at the circus, Tom was driving. The car they used was rented, because Tom's car had rolled into the river the night before. However, Seth hadn't been hurt, except for the spanking Tom gave him. And the circus loved the idea of a car-driving chimpanzee. Of course, there would be no motor in the car, and it would be pulled by two white horses—but Seth would be behind the wheel!

If you want your parents to get you a Daisy B•B Gun, look at it from their point of view.

We'd like every boy to have the thrill of owning a Daisy B•B Gun. But we want them to be ready. And parents can usually tell if they are.

You see, a Daisy is a B•B gun. It's not a toy. And owning a gun is a big responsibility.

How do your parents know when you're ready? Usually they can tell by the way you meet other responsibilities. Like picking up after yourself. Or pitching in when there's work to be done.

But if you're ready, a Daisy B•B Gun can be one of the most valuable things your parents ever give you. Because it doesn't just take responsibility. It teaches it.

It's the best way in the world for a boy to learn marksmanship and proper gun handling.

So, when you think you're ready for a Daisy, talk it over with your parents. Tell them you're ready to take on the responsibility of ownership.

We'll have the right Daisy B•B Gun for you.

Send for "The Air Rifle Marksman." Mail your name, address, and 25c to Daisy, P.O. Box 220, Rogers, Arkansas 72756.
